

They promised to defend. We promise to support.

Hi Everyone!

We just wanted to share some good news from OHT! More to come in November, so stay tuned!

Operation Hat Trick and the Red River Charitable Foundation, an organization that supports military veterans transitioning to civilian life, have made donations to eight Warriors Hockey teams across the country. The donations will be used to help fund ice time for practices and games.

"We are like-minded organizations, having partnered many times over the years to support wounded and recovering veterans " said Dot Sheehan, Founder and CEO of OHT. "We're both located in NH where hockey is a distinct part of our state's fabric. OHT and RRCF are making it possible for injured veterans to take to the ice to connect, form new friendships and gain resilience. Being on the ice means the world to them and with ice time being so expensive, this support makes it possible for over 300 players to continue practicing and playing games. These motivating experiences enable injured veterans to reach a more confident place in their lives," Sheehan concluded.

"Red River Charitable Foundation is proud to partner with Operation Hat Trick on this initiative again, to assist veterans and Warriors Hockey teams," said Kim Vacca, Director of Red River Charitable Foundation. "This is such incredible work for veterans with visible and invisible wounds of war and has provided profound impacts on the veteran community."

The teams receiving donations are the Capital Beltway Warriors, Challenge Alaska Warriors, Charleston (SC) Warriors, Chicago Warriors, Ice Vets Adaptive Sports, Minnesota Warriors, North Carolina Warriors and Pittsburgh Warriors.
